History of the University

The University of North Carolina is comprised of all the public institutions of higher education in North Carolina that confer degrees at the baccalaureate level or higher. The University was authorized by the State Constitution in 1776, and it was chartered in 1789 by the General Assembly.

The University of North Carolina opened its doors to students at Chapel Hill in 1795. Thereafter, beginning in the latter part of the nineteenth century, the General Assembly of North Carolina has established and supported fifteen other public senior institutions in keeping with Article IX, Section 8, of the Constitution of North Carolina which provides that the "General Assembly shall maintain a public system of higher education, comprising The University of North Carolina and such other institutions of higher education as the General Assembly may deem wise."

By 1969 The University of North Carolina included six constituent institutions, governed by a single Board of Trustees. This multicampus University had its beginnings in legislation enacted in 1931 that defined The University of North Carolina to include The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, North Carolina State University at Raleigh, and The University of North Carolina at Greensboro. In the 1960s three additional campuses were added: The University of North Carolina at Charlotte, The University of North Carolina at Asheville, and The University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Beginning in 1877, the General Assembly of North Carolina established or acquired ten additional separately governed state-supported senior institutions of higher education. They are: Appalachian State University, East Carolina University, Elizabeth City State University, Fayetteville State University, North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University, North Carolina Central University, North Carolina School of the Arts, Pembroke State University, Western Carolina University, and Winston-Salem State University. Then, in 1971, the General Assembly redefined The University of North Carolina, and under the terms of that legislation all sixteen public senior institutions became constituent institutions of The University of North Carolina.

The constitutionally authorized Board of Trustees of the six-campus University of North Carolina was designated the Board of Governors and this body is by law The University of North Carolina. The Board of Governors consists of thirty-two members elected by the General Assembly, and it is charged with "the general determination, control, supervision, management, and governance of all affairs of the constituent institutions." The chief executive officer of the University is the President.

Each constituent institution also has a board of trustees composed of thirteen members: eight elected by the Board of Governors, four appointed by the Governor, and the elected president of the student body ex officio. (The School of the Arts has two additional ex officio trustees). The principal powers of these institutional boards are exercised under a delegation of authority from the Board of Governors.

Equal Educational Opportunity

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is committed to equality of educational opportunity and does not discriminate against applicants, students, or employees based on race, color, national origin, religion, sex, age, or handicap. Any complaints alleging failure of this institution to follow this policy should be brought to the attention of the Assistant to the Chancellor. Moreover, The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is open to people of all races and actively seeks to promote racial integration by recruiting and enrolling a larger number of black students.

A Tradition of Excellence

For more than 60 years, the School has built an impressive record of service. Through excellent teaching, research, and public service, through its students, faculty, alumni, and friends, the School has been a force in journalism education and the mass media of North Carolina and beyond. It is the only school or department of journalism in North Carolina.

Today the more than 3,500 alumni of the School are active in virtually every aspect of journalism and mass communication. Many are trend-setting newspaper executives. Others hold high positions with international news agencies, magazines, broadcasting companies, and advertising agencies; in business journalism and public relations; and in research, government, education, and industry.

The School has all three degree programs: the bachelor's, master's and doctorate. Enrollment, which has grown enormously in recent years, is more than 450 majors (juniors, seniors, and graduate students). Approximately 90 percent are undergraduates, and 10 percent are graduate students.

The School has an excellent reputation, and relations with the mass media are first-rate. The primary role of the School has been and continues to be the education of young people for professional careers in the mass media of North Carolina, and most especially in newspapers of the state. Over the years, this has fostered close, harmonious relations with the state press.

The other mass media play an important role in the School also, and students from across the United States and from other countries come to Chapel Hill to study journalism and mass communication. The School constantly strives to serve them all, and to advance the field of journalism and mass communication everywhere.

History

The first course in journalism at UNC-CH was taught in the Department of English by Edward Kidder Graham in 1909-10. J.F. Royster taught the course after Professor Graham. Professor Richard H. Thornton, guided by the program in journalism at the University of Wisconsin, subsequently broadened the course offerings at Chapel Hill during his teaching career before and after World War I. Louis Graves became professor of journalism in the Department of English and director of the News Bureau in 1921, resigning his position in 1923 to establish The Chapel Hill Weekly.

The Department of Journalism was founded in 1924 with Gerald W. Johnson as professor of journalism. In 1926, he was succeeded by O.J. Coffin, known as "Skipper" by hundreds of journalism students.

The Department of Journalism became a separate School in 1950, and Professor Coffin served as Dean until he retired from administrative duties in 1953. He continued teaching until June 1956. Norval Neil Luxon became Dean on December 1, 1953, and served through June 30, 1964. Wayne A. Danielson became Dean on July 1, 1964. He was succeeded by John B. Adams on July 1, 1969. Richard R. Cole succeeded Adams on July 1, 1979.

Accreditation

The School has been nationally accredited since 1958. In 1978, the School received the first unit accreditation granted by the official accrediting agency, the Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communications. This accredited the entire School. The last accreditation report, in 1985, flatly declared that the School was one of the best in the country. The School is a member of the Association of Schools of Journalism and Mass Communication.

Quarters and Equipment

The School is located in Howell Hall, and virtually all journalism classes are taught there. Besides equipment for teaching reporting, editing, photography, and related courses, the School houses the McPherson Journalism Collection in its reading room. The collection contains more than 5,000 books and many other materials, including Vu/Text, a data-base resource, and microfilm and microfiche facilities, and the IND-EX system of the Durham Morning Herald and The Durham Sun. Hundreds of books written by alumni and faculty members are displayed in the Walter Spearman Collection in the entry hall of the building.

The Sara Lee Gifford Courtyard next to Howell Hall was given by Mr. and Mrs. L.C. Gifford of Hickory, N.C., in memory of their daughter.

R. J. Reynolds Industries, Inc., Center for Editing and Graphics

This center was established in 1981 with a generous gift of $150,000 from R.J. Reynolds Industries, Inc., of Winston Salem. It enables the School to teach up-to-date methods of electronic newspaper production with video-display terminals, a typesetter, and related equipment. The equipment is used in editing and other classes and for the production of School publications.

Knight Advertising Center

The excellent facility was made possible as part of a $900,000 grant from the Knight Foundation in 1984. With its microcomputers, audiovisual equipment, and other resources, it is one of the best facilities in the country for the study of advertising. It opened in January 1985.

Summer Session

The School offers a substantial and growing number of courses during the Summer Session. A catalog and application form may be obtained by writing to the Director of the Summer Session at UNC-CH. Undergraduate and graduate students with deficiencies to make up often attend the Summer Session before enrolling for their first regular semester in the School.

Placement Service

The School operates its own Placement Service and constantly seeks to fit the right graduating senior — or a journalist with years of experience, for that matter — with the right job. In addition, the School works closely with newspapers and other media throughout North Carolina and in other states on internship programs of various types.

Notices of current job opportunities are posted on a special bulletin board in Howell Hall, and the School holds placement seminars each year. Each student should file a job-application form in the Dean's office during his or her last semester in School. A resume file is maintained for upcoming graduates and alumni. Employees are encouraged to make use of this service. Although the Placement Service concentrates on UNC-CH students and graduates, any person seeking a job in mass communication is welcome to use it. Ms. Billie Nagelschmidt, the School's business manager, maintains the placement files.

Internship Programs

Although the School awards no academic credit for internships, all students are strongly encouraged to obtain internships — primarily in the summer — because they provide invaluable professional experience. News-editorial, advertising, photojournalism, public relations, business, and other internships are possible. Many newspapers in North Carolina and other states send editors or other executives to the School to interview students for internships. Most interviews take place in the spring, but more and more interviewers are coming in the fall to try to hire the best students. In addition to newspapers, interviewers come from business publications and other organizations.

Journalism Foundation

The School of Journalism Foundation of North Carolina, Inc., was founded in 1949. Its articles of incorporation provide that the foundation's purpose is to sponsor, promote, encourage, support and assist, financially and otherwise, the advancement of journalism education at UNC-CH. Such financial support, supplementing state appropriations, adds materially to the School's resources and strengthens its program of teaching, research, and public service. The endowment is more than $3 million.

Journalism Alumni and Friends Association (JAFA)

The JAFA constitution was adopted in January 1980. JAFA serves as a means by which alumni, friends, and the School can work together. It enables alumni and friends to play a more active role in School affairs, provides a means for recognizing alumni and friends, fosters camaraderie, and provides a means through which alumni and friends may contribute to the well-being of the School. The first president was Reed Sarratt, executive director of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association in Atlanta. Activities include a quarterly newsletter and a barbecue lunch before the annual Homecoming football game. Regional chapters are active in Washington, D.C., Atlanta, Charlotte, and New York City. Life memberships are available. Information about memberships and other JAFA matters may be obtained by writing to the Dean.

North Carolina Journalism Hall of Fame

The School is the headquarters of the North Carolina Journalism Hall of Fame, which was established in 1981 to recognize individuals who are natives of North Carolina or are distinctively identified with the state and who have made exceptionally distinguished and career-long contributions to journalism or mass communication. The Hall of Fame also serves as an inspiration to young journalists. Pictures of honorees hang permanently in Howell Hall. The inaugural honorees in 1981 were Josephus Daniels (posthumously), Charles Kuralt, C.A. "Pete" McKnight, Vermont Royster, and Tom Wicker. Anyone may make a nomination for the Hall of Fame, in writing in the fall of the year. Final selections are made by the Hall of Fame Committee. Inductions are made at a banquet during Journalism Days.

Journalism Days

This annual program, which began in 1981, is a celebration of journalism and mass communication and offers alumni and friends an opportunity to sit in on classes, attend special programs, and participate in School activities at a time when Chapel Hill is at its most beautiful. The program is held each April. It includes the North Carolina Journalism Hall of Fame banquet (although this event is not necessarily held each year), the School's annual awards convocation, and various special events and speakers. Journalism Days is cosponsored by JAFA and the School.

Journalism Education in the High School

The School is the center of statewide activity concerning journalism education in the high school. Two associations are involved:

The North Carolina Scholastic Press Association (NCSPA), founded in the late 1930s, has a history of leadership and service to scholastic journalism. The principal activity is the annual institute in June, which draws more than 300 students and teachers to Chapel Hill for four days of intensive training in newspaper, yearbook, and literary magazine journalism. NCSPA gives great opportunity for problem-solving, discussion, innovation, and creativity.

The North Carolina Scholastic Press Advisers Association (NCSPAA), founded in 1976, is an arm of NCSPA and gives publications advisers training in journalistic techniques and serves as a forum in which to exchange ideas. Advisers in NCSPAA attend a seminar in the fall and have separate sessions during the NCSPA summer workshop.

William Cloud, an assistant professor in the School, is director of NCSPA and executive secretary of NCSPAA.

North Carolina Press Association

For many years, the School has worked closely with the North Carolina Press Association (NCPA). A major activity is helping to conduct the annual NCPA contest, which draws more than 2,000 entries. Among other cooperative efforts, the School cosponsors an ongoing series of workshops with NCPA for reporters, advertising personnel, and others and often is the site of the workshops.

Continuing Education

A crucial service of the School is providing seminars for professional journalists and others in North Carolina and beyond. For example, the School works actively with the UNC-CH Institute of Government to sponsor various programs on law and public affairs for journalists. The School has cosponsored seminars with the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association and other organizations. In addition, the School works in cooperation with the NCPA, the North Carolina Press Women, and many other professional groups in the state and region, including chapters of the American Advertising Federation (AAF), International Newspaper Advertising and Marketing Executives (INAME), Mid-Atlantic Newspaper Advertising Executives Association, Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, and Women in Communication, Inc.

Visiting Journalists and Scholars

Each academic year, scores of guests visit the School. They speak to classes and nearly always talk with students and faculty in informal groups. Most are professional journalists and others in mass communication who provide invaluable up-to-date information. Others are outstanding researchers and scholars. Most come from North Carolina; others come from across the United States and some from abroad. They are either special guests in School-sponsored programs, such as the series of Distinguished Visiting Journalists, or in programs with which the School cooperates, such as the Editor-in-Residence program of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

AEJMC and Other Associations

The School continues to be one of the most active journalism units in the nation in its activities with the Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication (AEJMC), the 2,000-member organization for journalism educators. For many years, School faculty members have held national leadership positions, sat on AEJMC boards and committees, headed AEJMC divisions, and helped to edit national AEJMC publications. Two Deans have been AEJMC presidents: Neil Luxon in 1957 and Richard Cole in 1983.

Faculty members are active in many other national, international, and regional organizations. Among them: the International Association for Mass Communication Research (IAMCR), International Association of Business Communicators (IABC), American Association for Public Opinion Research (AAPOR), Southern Association for Public Opinion Research (SAPOR), Accrediting Council on Education for Journalism and Mass Communications (ACEJMC), Association of Schools of Journalism and Mass Communication (ASJMC), and committees of such organizations as the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association (SNPA), American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA) Foundation, and American Press Institute (API).

Minority Presence

The School is firmly committed to enlarging its minority presence at all levels. In recent years, minority students have constituted approximately 10 percent of the enrollment at both the undergraduate and graduate levels. The School earmarks scholarship money for minority students each year, and there is a School committee to recruit minority students.

Under the Board of Governors' general Minority Presence Grant Program, black students may be eligible for special financial assistance if they are residents of North Carolina, enrolled for at least three hours of degree-credit coursework, and demonstrate financial need.

Students of all racial and ethnic backgrounds use the School's Placement Service, of course, but the School also sends a group of black students and a faculty member to the job-placement conference at Howard University in Washington, D.C., each year.

The School also participates actively in several programs by encouraging minority students to compete for national awards and jobs. Among those programs are newspaper internships sponsored by The Newspaper Fund and special minority apprenticeship programs of Time-Life in New York City.

In addition, the School works actively in a program called the Minority-Professional-in-Residence through which black journalists speak to classes and visit with students in small groups. The School was among the first in the nation to become involved with this program, which is sponsored by the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE).

Confidentiality of Records

Student files in the School office are confidential and are restricted to persons with administrative or academic reasons to see them. No one else may see a student's records without the student's permission. Students may allow prospective employers to see their records by signing a release.

Research Activities

Journalism Research Center

The Center for Research in Journalism and Mass Communication is an active part of the School. Practical research work is carried out as a service to the profession and the state press, and methodological and theoretical work is conducted to further the discipline of journalism and mass communication. Research grants are sought to help assure the scholarly independence and support necessary for objective research into topics pertinent to practicing journalists and educators. In addition, the results of research projects are compiled into reports and distributed widely.

Research Productivity

The School is one of the most productive journalism units in the United States in terms of research. A study in Journalism Quarterly showed that the School ranked No. 3 in publishing academic articles among all U.S. journalism schools, and No. 2 in the nation in productivity per faculty member. This is especially significant since many journalism schools have much larger faculties. The School faculty publishes in an impressive array of academic and professional journals.

Carolina Poll

As a service to the mass media of the state and to the public, the School conducts the Carolina Poll once a semester. Each poll is a statewide scientific survey of North Carolina adults and includes questions of general interest to the public. The poll has earned respect and extensive use by the mass media.

Undergraduate Program

The School prepares men and women for careers in journalism and mass communication by offering an academic program that provides a basic liberal education, an understanding of the responsibilities of a free press in a democratic society, and a fundamental knowledge of journalistic and mass communication techniques and substance.

The philosophy that guides the School is that journalists and other communicators must understand the political, social, economic, and cultural forces that operate within society. For this reason, students acquire a background in the humanities, the social sciences, and the natural sciences while preparing themselves for journalism and mass communication careers. Only one-fourth of the credit hours earned toward the Bachelor of Arts in Journalism may be in journalism courses. The balance of each student's program is expected to provide the broad education necessary for those who plan careers in mass communication.

The School recognizes its responsibility to the state of North Carolina to prepare men and women for positions on newspapers and other media in the state. Its undergraduate program, therefore, includes technique courses in sufficient number to provide its graduates with entry-level skills for reporting, editing, advertising, photojournalism, public relations, and other positions on daily and nondaily newspapers and other media.

Admissions

The School is one of the undergraduate units of the University. Others are the General College, the College of Arts and Sciences, the School of Business Administration, and the School of Education. Students are enrolled in the General College during their first two years, after which they may transfer to the School or one of the other units. (Students may take journalism courses in the sophomore year.)

Undergraduate admissions to UNC-CH are handled by the University's Undergraduate Admissions Office, and requests for information and application forms should be sent to that office. A nonrefundable application fee of $25 must be submitted with the application for admission. An applicant who has been offered admission and who will live on campus must pay a $100 nonrefundable deposit that is credited toward the first semester's tuition. If student will live off-campus, this fee is $25. The Undergraduate Admissions Office will also advise students on the proper freshman and sophomore courses to take in preparation for junior-year transfer to Chapel Hill from other campuses.

Beginning with the Fall Semester of 1988, the entire University of North Carolina system will require all of its students to meet the same minimum undergraduate admissions requirements. These requirements have been adopted by the Board of Governors and are as follows:

- A high school diploma or its equivalent.
- Four course units in college preparatory English.
- Three course units in mathematics; including geometry, algebra I, and algebra II.
- Two course units in social sciences; including one unit in U.S. History and one unit in government and economics.
- Three course units in science, including at least one unit in a life or biological science and at least one unit in a physical science, and including at least one laboratory course.

In addition, it is recommended that prospective students complete at least two course units in one foreign language, and that they take one foreign language course unit and one mathematics course unit in the twelfth grade.

Students are admitted to the School when they attain junior standing and have completed the requirements of the General College on the Chapel Hill campus or have earned grades of C or better in equivalent courses at other recognized institutions.

To qualify for admission from the UNC-CH General College, students must have earned an overall quality-point average of 2.0 or better in all course work. In addition, students must have passed English 30 with a grade of C or better, or they must have passed the School's Diagnostic Writing Examination during their freshman or sophomore year.

To qualify for transfer admission from another UNC-CH department or school, students must have earned an overall quality-point average of 2.0 or better in all course work. In addition, students must have passed English 30 with a grade of C or better, or they must have passed the School's Diagnostic Writing Examination (DWE).

Because the University limits the number of transfer students from other institutions, applicants compete for admission to the School on the basis of quality-point averages and other academic credentials, and on such matters as commitment to a career in journalism or communications and letters of recommendation. The final decision on admitting junior transfers rests with the UNC-CH Office of Undergraduate Admissions.

Although there may be exceptions, the general policy is that the School accepts no more than six credits in journalism courses from another institution.

Off-campus transfer students who do not transfer the equivalent of English 30 will take the Diagnostic Writing Examination during the School's orientation session. Those who do not pass the examination may not enroll for Journalism 53 or for any other writing course until they have passed English 30 with a grade of C or better.

Pre-Transfer Advising

Students are urged to visit the School in the freshman and sophomore years to meet with faculty members and plan a sound foundation for their professional program. A journalism faculty member serves as a General College adviser to assist students on the Chapel Hill campus. Pre-journalism students are also invited to participate in activities of the School.

Journalism classes are not open to freshmen, but several are open to sophomores:

If a sophomore has passed the School's diagnostic writing examination or has passed English 30 with at least a C, then he or she may enroll in Journalism 53, "Newswriting." A sophomore may proceed from Journalism 53 to Journalism 54, "Reporting" (or even to Journalism 57, "News Editing," although upperclass students nearly always take all the spaces in this course). A sophomore might wish to take Journalism 56, "Feature Writing." (Although Journalism 53 is not a prerequisite for Journalism 56, students do better in the latter course if they have had 53.) In addition, special skills courses that are taught occasionally under the Journalism 191 number may be open to sophomores if they have passed Journalism 53 and if the instructor feels that the student is ready for the 191 course.

Sophomores planning on taking the advertising sequence are encouraged to take Journalism 170, "Principles of Advertising," if there is space available. Sophomores may also take Journalism 101, "The Mass Media and U.S. History," or Journalism 146, "International Communication and Comparative Journalism." Journalism 120, a course in community journalism, might be taken by a sophomore if the student has passed Journalism 53 and if the instructor gives permission.

Special Requirements

Because all assignments in journalism must be typewritten, many of them in the classroom, students must be able to type with reasonable skill at the time of admission to the School. For those who can plan in advance, a course in typing in high school or elsewhere is recommended. A knowledge of shorthand or speedwriting is an asset.

Students are expected to have a solid foundation in spelling, grammar, punctuation, and other writing skills before they enter the School. In line with these expectations, the School requires that students pass a spelling-and-grammar examination as a condition for graduation. The examination is administered twice each semester and in the summer. Students may take the examination as often as necessary to pass or to improve their passing scores. Spelling and grammar scores become part of students' records.

The Diagnostic Writing Examination is given twice each semester, and students may retake the examination whenever it is scheduled. But students must pre-register for the examination in the School office. The examination requires students to write a short essay on a topic with which they will be familiar. The essays are graded by faculty members.

Academic Procedures and Regulations

Enrollment in Courses

Journalism majors normally have priority over other students for space in journalism courses, but space is not guaranteed in all courses in any given semester. Permission is required from the instructor (and in some cases from the School) for most journalism courses.

Students should consult their advisers early in a semester to begin planning for the subsequent semester and should get permission slips from instructors in the School as soon as the slips become available, generally one week before pre-registration.

An instructor may drop any student who does not attend the first meeting of a class unless the student has made a prior arrangement with the instructor.

Course Loads

Students may not pre-register for more than 17 hours or fewer than 12 hours per semester without permission from the Associate Dean.

Journalism students are expected to take a normal course load of at least 15 credits per semester. Course loads of fewer than 12 credits will be permitted in only the most unusual circumstances.

Subject to the above restrictions, students may drop courses any time during the first six weeks of the semester. After that, drops are permitted for a limited number of reasons, including medical problems or a change in job status.

Academic Progress

To remain academically eligible, students must meet the following requirements:

- 1.50 quality-point average and 24 academic semester hours (cumulative) to begin the third semester in residence.
- 1.75 quality-point average and 51 academic semester hours (cumulative) to begin the fifth semester in residence.
- 1.90 quality-point average and 78 academic semester hours (cumulative) to begin the seventh semester in residence.
- 2.00 quality-point average and 105 academic semester hours (cumulative) to begin the ninth semester in residence.

Required physical education activity courses do not count as academic semester hours. Semester hours taken on other campuses in which at least C grades have been earned will be used in computing the cumulative total of semester hours passed.

Quality points are computed as follows:

A 4.0, A- 3.7, B+ 3.3, B 3.0, B- 2.7, C+ 2.3, C 2.0, C- 1.7, D+ 1.3, D 1.0, F 0.0.

Students failing to meet these requirements have the right to petition for readmission, but unless there are exceptional circumstances, such an appeal has little chance of approval.

Pass-Fail Option

Students may take up to 24 credit hours Pass-Fail but may not take more than seven in a semester. Any course may be taken Pass-Fail except:

- English W, 1, and 2.
- Courses taken to satisfy the General Education Basic Skills requirement.
- Courses taken to satisfy the General Education Perspective courses to be counted in the General College.
- Courses in the major.
- Related courses specifically required (and designated by number) by the major department or curriculum.
- Summer courses.

Within six weeks of the start of classes, students may designate a course (or courses) for which they have registered in the regular manner as Pass-Fail by application to the Dean's Office. Once a course has been selected for Pass-Fail, the selection is irrevocable. Appeals for exceptions will not be heard. In computation of grade-point averages, a failure on Pass-Fail will be computed as hours attempted; a pass will not be computed as hours attempted. Students who change their major to a field in which they have already taken Pass-Fail work may credit only one Pass-Fail course in the new major.

Final Examinations

Students are expected to take final examinations in accordance with the University's schedule and regulations. In cases where a student has four scheduled examinations in two days, permission for an excused absence from one of the examinations can be approved by the Associate Dean.

Honors Program

An honors program is available to students who have demonstrated their ability to perform distinguished work. Admission to the honors courses (98 and 99) is based upon an average of 3.3 or better in the major and overall, recommendation by a faculty member in the School, and approval by Dr. Margaret A. Blanchard, director of the honors program. Students successfully completing the program are graduated "with honors" or "with highest honors."

Degree Requirements

Sequences and Double Majors

A sequence in the School is a concentration in news-editorial journalism or in advertising. Each sequence has some courses that are required specifically, some courses are required for all majors in the School.

Students may double major by meeting all requirements for the major in the School and in the other discipline. News-editorial and advertising students may double major in virtually any field in Arts and Sciences. (A student interested in broadcasting should be in the broadcast journalism option in the news-editorial sequence instead of being a double major in Journalism and RTVMP.) The degree earned is a B.A. in Journalism. Double majors are noted on the transcript but not on the diploma. Sequences are not noted on the transcript or diploma.

UNC-CH Degree Requirements

Undergraduates must meet the following general requirements for graduation:

- A distribution of courses during the first two years that meets General College requirements.
- A minimum of 120 credits (not including physical education activity courses) with a quality-point average of 2.0.

Journalism Requirements in All Sequences

– The grade of D in a core journalism course cannot count toward graduation; the student must repeat the course. Only one D in a journalism elective may be counted in the minimum journalism credit hours required for graduation.

– Of the basic 120 hours for graduation, at least 90 hours must be outside journalism and the skills courses in RTVMP, if any are taken. Within these 90 hours, at least 65 must be in Arts and Sciences. Beyond the basic 120 hours for graduation (not counting the 1-hour P.E. activity courses), students may take as many journalism courses as they like. The minimum number of journalism credits required is 27, and students are strongly encouraged to take more. (Honors students must take more than 27.) Please note: Journalism 55 may not be counted in the minimum of 27 credit hours required in journalism for graduation; it must be beyond that.

- A passing score on the School's spelling and grammar examination.
- The General Education Perspectives for juniors and seniors (may be taken Pass-Fail).
- A supporting program, which varies with the student's sequence in the School (may be taken Pass-Fail).
- An outside concentration, which is explained in the following material on sequences in the School (may be taken Pass-Fail).

In addition, students must take at least two courses from the following group of conceptual courses, at least one of which must be taken from the first five: 101, 140, 141, 146, 165; 120, 130, 151, 170, 191 (when it is a conceptual course).

Experience on other media is encouraged throughout the student's years on campus. Publications include Black Ink, She, The Phoenix, and others. The UNC Journalist, a laboratory newspaper of the School, serves as an excellent print outlet for students.

Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi

Students interested in journalism careers are encouraged to join the campus chapter of the national Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi. Student membership may be transferred to membership in professional chapters upon graduation. Monthly meetings offer a mixture of sessions with professionals from various backgrounds for explorations of career opportunities and other specialized programs. Each year the chapter sponsors a seminar on how to apply for a job. The student chapter is associated with professional chapters on regional and national levels, and students are encouraged to attend annual meetings at both levels. The professional group sponsors a Mark of Excellence competition annually.

Women in Communication, Inc.

Expenses and Financial Aid

Tuition and Fees

Tuition and fees are assessed on a semester basis and are due at registration. Accounts not paid in full by the last day of registration are subject to a late-payment fee and the student's possible disenrollment.

| | N.C. | |
|---------|----------|-------------|
| | Resident | Nonresident |
| Tuition | $275.00 | $1,910.00 |
| Fees | $173.25 | $ 173.25 |

Textbook costs, breakage deposits on equipment used in some courses, laundry fees, and board are not included in payment to the University Cashier. The University reserves the right to make, with the approval of the proper authorities, changes in tuition and other fees at any time. A student whose bona fide residence has not been established in North Carolina for at least 12 months preceding his first registration in the University must pay a higher rate of tuition than that charged a legal resident of North Carolina. A current estimate of total annual expenses for a student who is a resident of North Carolina is $4,976.50 and for a nonresident $8,246.50.

Housing

The primary objective of the Department of Housing is to provide a physical and psychological atmosphere conducive to each student's having opportunity to develop to the utmost his or her personality, ability, and sensitivity. The University provides residence hall accommodations for approximately 6,800 registered students - undergraduate, graduate, and professional men and women. Three hundred and six apartments are available for student family housing.

Information regarding residence hall accommodations is available by writing to: Department of University Housing, Contracts Office, Carr Building, The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Chapel Hill, NC 27514. Information regarding married-student housing is available by writing to: Manager, UNC Student Family Housing Odum Village, Branson Street, Chapel Hill, NC 27514.

Financial Aid

Several scholarships are available for journalism students who show academic attainment and financial need. Loan funds, University scholarships, and jobs are described in the Undergraduate Bulletin. Students in the School may apply for these general scholarships as well as for those limited to journalism students. Information about scholarships, loans, and part-time jobs may be obtained by writing the Director of Student Financial Aid or the Dean of the School. Applications are available in the Dean's office, the deadline is Feb. 1 for the next academic year.

Scholarships Awarded by the School of Journalism

The School of Journalism awards several scholarships each year to students who will be journalism majors the following year. Applications may be picked up in the School office after Dec. 1 and must be completed and turned in no later than the following Feb. 1. Winners are announced in April at the School's annual awards convocation. A single application makes a student eligible for all scholarships, provided that the student meets the minimum grade-point average required for scholarships (2.2). Applicants are also advised to submit a Financial Aid Form to the College Scholarship Service of the Educational Testing Service.

Students who plan to transfer from another campus or institution to the School of Journalism may apply for scholarships. But the School will not award scholarships to such students until it has official notification of the students' acceptance as transfer students.

Scholarships are awarded on the basis of academic performance, financial need, and potential for journalism and communication careers. Winners of the distinguished scholarships are selected from among the top applicants who are interviewed by faculty members and representatives of the School of Journalism Foundation.

Some scholarships are for certain amounts each year; amounts may vary from year to year for other scholarships. Winners receive half of their scholarship funds at the beginning of the fall semester and the other half at the beginning of the spring semester. Scholarship checks are distributed by the University's Student Aid Office. Certain scholarships are designated for minority students.

The School of Journalism, through the Graduate School, offers a program leading to the Master of Arts degree. It is also the administrative center for an interdepartmental program leading to the Ph.D. in Mass Communication Research. Its graduate courses may also be used as minor or supplementary courses for the M.A. and Ph.D. in other fields.

Admissions

All applications to the graduate program are administered through the Graduate School, The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Bynum Hall 008A, Chapel Hill, NC 27514. Applicants must write there for application materials.

Generally, admission to the graduate program is limited to students who have:

1. Been graduated by approved colleges or universities.
2. Undergraduate grade-point averages of at least 3.0 (A = 4.0) in the major and at least 3.0 in the last two years overall.
3. Acceptable scores on the Graduate Record Examination.
4. Three recommendations from appropriate persons.
5. Submitted typewritten statements of career intent, showing how they plan to make effective use of graduate training in journalism and mass communication.

Applicants should be aware that applications far exceed the number of admissions and that each year many qualified applicants are rejected because of limited space in the program.

Fellowships and Assistantships

In 1980 Dow Jones & Co., Inc., gave the School of Journalism a $150,000 grant in honor of Vermont Connecticut Royster, William Rand Kenan, Jr., Professor of Journalism and Public Affairs and former editor of The Wall Street Journal. The School raised $50,000 from other sources, and income from this $200,000 endowment finances Royster-Dow Jones fellowships and assistantships for graduate students. Each stipend is at least $5,700 for the academic year.

The School also awards a number of research assistantships for at least $2,850 a semester. Funds for these assistantships come from research grants to the School and from the School of Journalism Foundation. Students appointed to the assistantships work a set number of hours a week on research projects supervised by faculty members, and their course load is limited to a maximum of 12 credit hours a semester. Other assistantships with smaller stipends are occasionally available with reduced hours of service.

University fellowships, each with a stipend of $5,700 or more for the academic year, are available on a competitive basis to a limited number of graduate students. Appointments to fellowships are handled by the Graduate School after the student has been nominated by the graduate faculty of the School.

The Minority Presence Grant Program for Doctoral Study provides stipends of up to $6,000 for the academic year, with an option of $600 in additional support for study in the summer session, for black residents of North Carolina who are selected to participate. Recipients must be full-time students pursuing doctoral degrees at The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Master of Arts Program

The M.A. program has two major purposes. One is to provide students with an opportunity to acquire skills and knowledge necessary to work in the mass media and related fields. This includes print and broadcast journalism, photojournalism, public relations and advertising. The other purpose is to train students in communication studies and research techniques appropriate for teaching and research. All aspects of the program include a critical appreciation of the role of mass communication in society.

The M.A. is designed to meet the needs of: 1) holders of the bachelor's degree in fields other than journalism who wish to enter the communications field, 2) journalists who want more education in a specialized field, 3) experienced journalists who wish to prepare themselves for journalism teaching, 4) individuals primarily interested in education for media research, and 5) journalism graduates who wish to continue their education and career development.

The M.A. program, because it must serve the needs of students with a wide variety of interests, has exceptional flexibility. The curriculum may be adapted for students interested in news-editorial journalism, photojournalism, public relations, advertising, mass communication research, communications history, communications law, international communication or other fields related to mass communication.

The program consists of six or seven journalism courses plus three or four supporting courses to make a total of at least 10 (30 credit hours). All must be at the 100-level or above. At least two journalism courses must be at the 200-level or above. The required courses for all students are JOUR 151 and 164. Students are also required to take a seminar examining contemporary media issues.

In addition to the graduate-level coursework, each student will be required to demonstrate above-average competency and knowledge associated with four skills-related courses.

Advertising students must demonstrate competency in:

- JOUR 170 (Principles of Advertising)
- JOUR 171 (Advertising Copy and Communication)
- JOUR 172 (Advertising Media)
- BUSI 160 (Principles of Marketing)
- In addition, computer competency is required. Students may take JOUR 177 to acquire the competency.

All other M.A. students must demonstrate competency in:

- JOUR 53 (Newswriting)
- JOUR 54 (Reporting)
- JOUR 57 (News Editing)
- Any professional course at the 100-level or above approved by the M.A. program coordinator or the student's adviser (this includes JOUR 131, 154, 156, 157, 180, 191 or 262) or, for students planning to write a traditional thesis, an approved methods course at the 100-level or above.

Students must be able to type well before beginning JOUR 53 (Newswriting).

Course competency must be demonstrated during the first year by:

1. Taking these courses at Chapel Hill and receiving a grade of at least B or P. These courses do not count toward the 30 credits of graduate study necessary for the degree.

2. Passing exemption examinations. Students with journalistic experience or with journalism courses from other schools must pass the examinations in order to be exempted. Because the tests are intended to ensure that students have the necessary skills for graduate-level coursework, they are rigorous. Not everyone with previous background in journalism passes. The examinations are given before the beginning of each semester.

Students preparing for professional careers in news-editorial positions should take JOUR 281 and either 154 or 262. These students may write a traditional thesis or a series of articles of publishable quality on a topic requiring considerable depth of investigation or enterprise.

Students preparing for professional careers in advertising agencies, media or business should take either JOUR 251 or 281 and an elective in advertising, such as JOUR 178 or 179. In addition, they should take BUSI 263 (Advertising Management). These students will have the option of preparing a regular thesis or an advertising project.

Students with other career goals are required to develop a course of study under the direction of the M.A. program adviser and an individual adviser. A thesis or an approved professional project, preceded by an appropriate research seminar, is required of these students.

Each student's supporting program is planned with the help of the M.A. program adviser and an individual faculty adviser. Normally, this group of courses would be in a single discipline, but exceptions can be made when the student provides adequate justification.

Four of the student's courses in the M.A. program must be at the 200-level or above.

In addition, each M.A. student is required to:

1. Pass the School's spelling-and-grammar examination in the first semester of residence.
2. Select a committee to supervise the M.A. work. The committee consists of the student's adviser, another member of the journalism faculty, and a representative from the supplementary field or a third journalism member.
3. Take two special examinations: a written comprehensive examination over the course work, and an oral examination (a defense of the thesis or approved professional project).

There is no foreign-language requirement for the M.A. in journalism.

Students with an appropriate undergraduate degree should expect to take at least three semesters to get the M.A. Those who have to take additional courses need longer.

Ph.D. Program

The Ph.D. with a major in Mass Communication Research is designed to meet the needs of outstanding graduate students who wish to prepare for teaching and research positions in colleges and universities, or to prepare for research jobs in the mass communication industry, in market or opinion research firms, in business, or in government.

A Ph.D. student is required to demonstrate competency in one foreign language or in an approved research area (exception: all candidates with an emphasis in international communication must fulfill the foreign-language requirement).

For admission, students must hold a master's degree from an accredited university. This degree may be in any related field. Students must complete at least 48 credit hours beyond the master's for the Ph.D. (not counting the three credit hours for the dissertation). Previous course work will be taken into account as student programs are developed by students and their advisers.

The program leading to the Ph.D. is interdisciplinary and is tailored to the needs of each student. In journalism, the student is expected to attain a high degree of competence in research methodology. The student also is expected to master a broad range of knowledge concerning mass communication in society. In addition to the methods courses in journalism, the student must take at least one approved statistics course outside the School. The balance of the program will include courses in two substantive areas of specialization. These courses will be taken both within the School and in other disciplines. Students can concentrate in such substantive areas as media history, mass communication law, communication theory and methodology, mass media and society, advertising, international communication, and telecommunications. The dissertation will be written on a topic in mass communication.

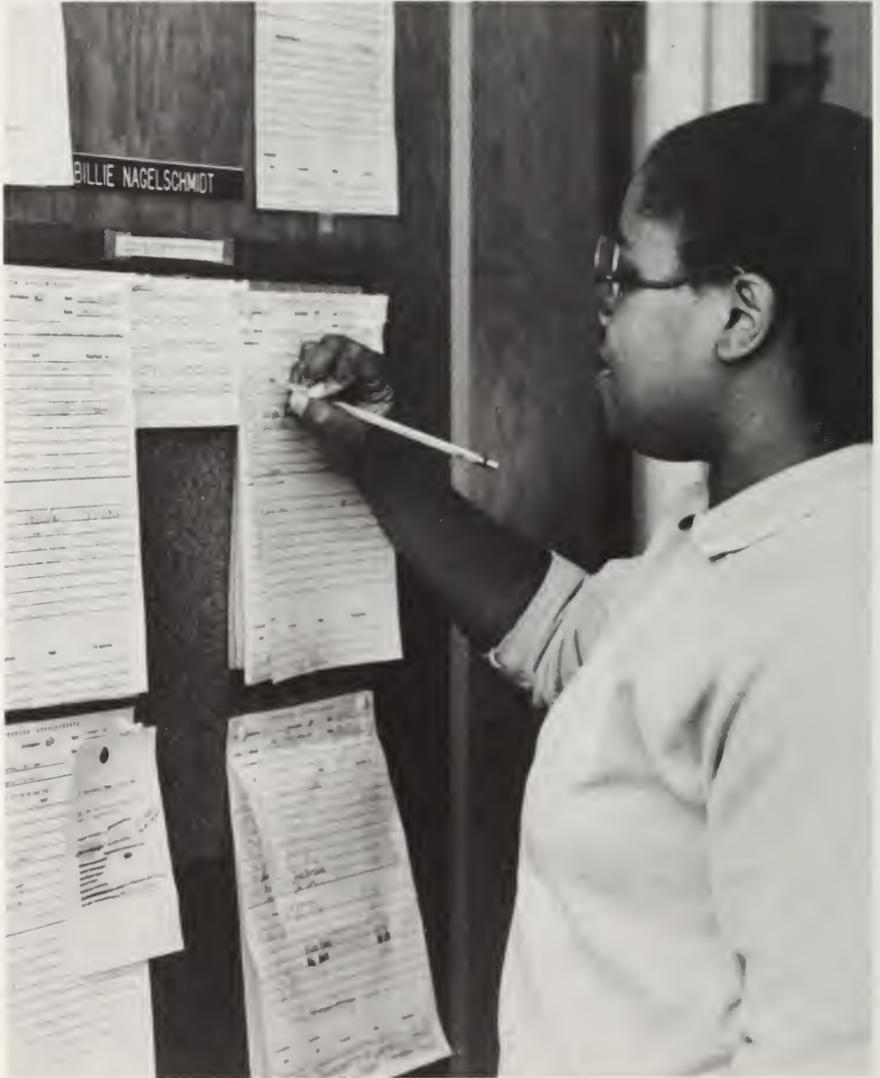

Admission to the program leading to the Ph.D. follows the same rules as those which apply to applicants to the M.A. program, except that the required degree is an M.A. or M.S. from the approved university.

The Graduate School requirements for the Ph.D. degree apply to the Mass Communication Research program. Briefly, they include:

- At least four semesters of residence with a minimum of two of these in continuous study at The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. A semester of residence credit is earned by the successful completion of a registration for nine semester hours or more of course work or research; for lighter registrations, less credit will be received.

- A written comprehensive examination.
- A preliminary oral examination covering all the work completed up to the time of the examination.
- A dissertation on a topic related to the field of mass communication.
- A final oral examination in defense of the dissertation.

RESIDENCE STATUS FOR TUITION PURPOSES¹

The following sections summarize important aspects of the residency law. A complete explanation of the Statute and the procedures under the Statute is contained in A Manual to Assist the Public Higher Education Institutions of North Carolina in the Matter of Student Residence Classification for Tuition Purposes. This Manual and other information concerning the application of this law are available for inspection in the Admissions Offices of the University. Copies of the Manual are also on reserve at the Robert B. House Undergraduate Library. All students are responsible for knowledge of the contents of the Statute and the Manual.

Every applicant for admission is required to make a statement as to his or her length of residence in North Carolina. A person who qualifies as a resident for tuition purposes under North Carolina law pays a lower rate of tuition than a nonresident. To qualify for in-state tuition, a legal resident must have been domiciled in North Carolina for at least twelve months immediately prior to the beginning of the term for which classification as a resident for tuition purposes is sought. The student must also establish that his or her presence in the State during such twelve-month period was for purposes of maintaining a bona fide domicile rather than for purposes of maintaining a mere temporary residence incident to enrollment in an institution of higher education. "Domicile" means one's permanent dwelling place of indefinite duration, as distinguished from a temporary place of abode; it is synonymous with "legal residence."

Procedural Information

General. A student admitted to initial enrollment in an institution (or permitted to re-enroll following an absence from the institutional program which involved a formal withdrawal from enrollment) is classified by the admitting institution either as a resident or as a nonresident for tuition purposes prior to actual matriculation. In the absence of a current and final determination of the student's residence prior to matriculation, the student is classified a nonresident for tuition purposes. The institution will thereafter reach a final determination of the student's residence status. Unless a person supplies enough information to allow the admissions officer to classify him or her as a resident for tuition purposes, the person will be classified a nonresident for tuition purposes. A residence classification once assigned (and confirmed pursuant to any appellate process invoked) may be changed thereafter (with a corresponding change in billing rates) only at intervals corresponding with the established primary divisions of the academic calendar.

Transfer Students. When a student transfers from one North Carolina public institution of higher education to another, he or she is required to be treated as a new student by the institution to which he or she is transferring and must be assigned an initial residence classification for tuition purposes. The residence classification of a student by one institution is not binding on another institution. The North Carolina institutions of higher education will assist each other by supplying residency information and classification records concerning a student to another classifying institution upon request.

The transfer into or admission to a different component of the same institution (e.g., from an undergraduate to a graduate or professional program) is not construed as a transfer from one institution to another and thus does not by itself require a reclassification inquiry unless (1) the affected student requests a reclassification inquiry or (2) the transfer or enrollment occurs following the lapse of more than one quarter, semester, or term during which the individual was not enrolled as a student.

Responsibility of Students and Prospective Students. Any student or prospective student in doubt concerning his or her residence status bears the responsibility for securing a ruling by completing an application for resident status and filing it with the admissions officer. The student who, due to subsequent events, becomes eligible for a change in classification, whether from out-of-state to in-state or the reverse, has the responsibility of immediately informing the Office of Admissions of these circumstances in writing. Failure to give complete and correct information regarding residence constitutes grounds for disciplinary action.

¹The information in this section comes from three sources: (i) North Carolina General Statutes, §116-143.1, (ii) A Manual to Assist the Public Higher Education Institutions of North Carolina in the Matter of Student Residence Classification for Tuition Purposes, Revised September 1985, (iii) Chancellor's Rules and Procedures for Residence Classification of Students for Tuition Purposes.

Application Process. A person may obtain an application for resident status from his or her admissions office. Applicants for admission who claim eligibility for the in-state tuition rate customarily complete a two-page residency application as a part of the admissions application packet. Some applicants for admission will thereafter be required to complete a further, four-page, residency application. Enrolled students seeking a change from nonresident to resident status are required to complete a four-page residency application. All applications for resident status must be filed with the proper admissions office before the end of the term for which resident status for tuition purposes is sought. The last day of the final examination period is considered the last day of the term.

After filing a resident status application, a person may receive a letter from his or her admissions office requesting more information in connection with that application. When a student receives such a request before the end of the term for which classification is sought, he or she must respond to that request no later than three weeks after the end of the term. If the student receives the request for supplemental information after the end of the term in question, he or she must supply the requested information within three weeks after receipt of the request. Failure to supply the requested information within the specified time limit will result in a continuation of the student's nonresident classification unless good cause is shown for such failure.

The admissions office may require an applicant for admission to file a residency application, or respond to a request for more information, more quickly when residence status is a factor in the admissions decision.

The pamphlet "Information About Resident Status for Tuition Purposes" contains more details about the residency application process and is available at all admissions offices.

Fraudulent Applications. If a student is classified a resident for tuition purposes after submitting falsified residency information or after knowingly withholding residency information, the student's application for in-state tuition status is fraudulent. The institution may re-examine any application suspected of being fraudulent and, if warranted, will change the student's residence status retroactively to the beginning of the term with respect to which the student originally made the fraudulent application. If this occurs the student must pay the out-of-state tuition differential for all the enrolled terms intervening between the fraudulent application and its discovery. Further, knowing falsification of responses on a resident status application may subject the applicant to disciplinary consequences, including dismissal from the institution.

Burden of Proof and Statutory Prima Facie Evidence. A person has the burden of establishing facts which justify his or her classification as a resident for tuition purposes. The balancing of all the evidence must produce a preponderance of evidence supporting the assertion of in-state residence. Under the Statute proof of resident status is controlled initially by one of two evidentiary beginning points which are stated in terms of prima facie evidence.

- a. Even if the person is an adult, if his or her parents (or court-appointed guardian in the case of some minors) are not legal residents of North Carolina, this is prima facie evidence that the person is not a legal resident of North Carolina unless he or she has lived in this state the five consecutive years prior to enrolling or re-registering. To overcome this prima facie showing of nonresidence, a person must produce evidence that he or she is a North Carolina domiciliary despite the parents' nonresident status.
- b. Conversely, if the person's parents are domiciliaries of North Carolina under the Statute, this fact constitutes prima facie evidence that the person is a domiciliary of North Carolina. This prima facie showing may also be overcome by other evidence to the contrary. If a person has neither living parents nor legal guardian, the prescribed prima facie evidence rule cannot and does not apply.

Erroneous Notices Concerning Classification. If a student, who has been found to be a nonresident for tuition purposes, receives an erroneous notice from an institutional officer identifying the student as a resident for tuition purposes, the student is not responsible for paying the out-of-state tuition differential for any enrolled term beginning before the classifying institution notifies the student that the prior notice was erroneous.

Grace Period. If a student has been properly classified as a North Carolina resident for tuition purposes and, thereafter, his or her state of legal residence changes while he or she is enrolled in a North Carolina public institution of higher education, the statute provides for a grace period during which the student is allowed to pay tuition at the in-state rate despite the fact that the student is no longer a North Carolina legal resident. This grace period extends for a minimum of twelve months from the date of change in legal residence, and if the twelve-month period ends during a semester or academic term in which the student is enrolled, the grace period extends also to the end of that semester or academic term.

Reacquisition of Resident Tuition Status. The prescribed twelve-month period of legal residence may be shortened if the person seeking to be classified as a resident for tuition purposes was formerly classified a North Carolina resident for tuition purposes, abandoned North Carolina domicile, and reestablished North Carolina domicile within twelve months after abandoning it. Interested persons should consult their admissions offices for a detailed explanation of the conditions which must be met to qualify under this section.

Appeals. A student appeal of a classification decision made by any admissions officer must be in writing and signed by the student and must be filed by the student with that officer within fifteen working days after the student receives notice of the classification decision. The appeal is transmitted to the Residence Status Committee by that officer, who does not vote in that Committee on the disposition of such appeal. The student is notified of the date set for consideration of the appeal, and, on request of the student, he or she is afforded the opportunity to appear and be heard by the Committee. Any student desiring to appeal a decision of the Residence Status Committee must give notice in writing of that fact, within ten days of receipt by the student of the Committee's decision, to the Chairman of the Residence Status Committee, and the Chairman promptly processes the appeal for transmittal to the State Residence Committee.

It is the responsibility of the student to pay tuition at the rate charged and billed while an appeal is pending. In effect, the student who is classified a nonresident at the time of tuition billing pays the nonresident rate. Conversely, if a student is classified as a resident at the time of billing, he or she pays the resident rate. Any necessary adjustments in the rate paid will be made at the conclusion of the appeal.

Application of the Law to Specific Situations

Aliens. Aliens who are permanent residents of the U.S., or who hold a visa which will permit eventual permanent residence in the U.S., are subject to the same considerations with respect to determination of legal residence as citizens. An alien abiding in the U.S. under a visa conditioned at least in part upon intent not to abandon a foreign domicile (B, F, H, and J visas) cannot be classified a resident. An alien abiding in the U.S. under a visa issued for a purpose which is so restricted as to be fundamentally incompatible with an assertion by the alien of bona fide intent to establish a legal residence (C, D, and M visas) cannot be classified a resident.

Possession of certain other immigration documents may also allow an alien to be considered for in-state tuition status. For more details aliens should consult their admissions offices and the Manual. Aliens must file a Residence Status Supplemental Form in addition to the forms normally required of applicants for resident status for tuition purposes.

Married Persons. The domicile of a married person, irrespective of sex, is determined by reference to all relevant evidence of domiciliary intent. No person is precluded, solely by reason of marriage to a person domiciled outside of North Carolina, from establishing or maintaining legal residence in North Carolina. No person is deemed, solely by reason of marriage to a person domiciled in North Carolina, to have established or maintained a legal residence in North Carolina. The fact of marriage and the place of the domicile of his or her spouse are deemed relevant evidence to be considered in ascertaining domiciliary intent.

If a person otherwise can demonstrate compliance with the fundamental statutory requirement that he or she be a legal resident of North Carolina before the beginning of the term for which resident status is sought, the second statutory requirement relating to duration of residence may be satisfied derivatively, in less than twelve months, by reference to the length of the legal residence of the person's spouse, if the spouse has been a legal resident of the State for the requisite twelve-month period.

Military Personnel. The domicile of a person employed by the Federal government is not necessarily affected by assignment in or reassignment out of North Carolina. Such a person may establish domicile by the usual requirements of residential act plus intent. No person loses his or her in-state resident status solely by serving in the armed forces outside of the State of North Carolina.

Minors. A minor is any person who has not reached the age of eighteen years. The domicile of a minor is presumed under the common law to be that of the father, subject to rebutting evidence. If the father is deceased, the domicile of the minor is that of the surviving mother. If the parents are divorced or legally separated, the domicile of the minor is that of the parent having custody by virtue of a court order; or, if no custody has been granted by virtue of court order, the domicile of the minor is that of the parent with whom he or she lives; or, if the minor lives with neither parent, in the absence of a custody award, the domicile of the minor is presumed to remain that of the father. If the minor lives for part of the year with each parent, in the absence of a custody award, the minor's domicile is presumed to remain that of the father. These common law presumptions control even if the minor has lived in North Carolina for five years as set forth above in Burden of Proof and Statutory Prima Facie Evidence, subsection a.

In determining residence status for tuition purposes, there are three exceptions to the above provisions:

1. If a minor's parents are divorced, separated, or otherwise living apart and one parent is a legal resident of North Carolina, during the time period when that parent is entitled to claim, and does claim, the minor as a dependent on the North Carolina individual income tax return, the minor is deemed to be a legal resident of North Carolina for tuition purposes, notwithstanding any judicially determined custody award with respect to the minor.

If, immediately prior to his or her eighteenth birthday, a person would have been deemed to be a North Carolina legal resident under this provision but he or she achieves majority before enrolling in an institution of higher education, that person will not lose the benefit of this provision if the following conditions are met:

- a. Upon achieving majority the person must act, as much as possible, in a manner consistent with bona fide legal residence in North Carolina; and
- b. The person must begin enrollment at an institution of higher education not later than the fall academic term next following completion of education prerequisite to admission at the institution.

2. If, immediately prior to beginning an enrolled term, the minor has lived in North Carolina for five or more consecutive years in the home of an adult relative (other than a parent) who is a legal resident of North Carolina, and if the adult relative, during those years, has functioned as a de facto guardian of the minor, then the minor is considered a legal resident of North Carolina for tuition purposes. If a minor qualified for resident status for tuition purposes under this provision immediately prior to his or her eighteenth birthday, then, upon becoming eighteen, he or she will be deemed to be a legal resident of North Carolina of at least twelve months' duration.

3. Even though a person is a minor, under certain circumstances the person may be treated by the law as being sufficiently independent from his or her parents as to enjoy a species of adulthood for legal purposes. If the minor marries or obtains a judicial decree of emancipation under N.C. Gen. Stat. §7A-717, et seq., he or she is emancipated. The consequence, for present purposes, of such emancipation is that the affected person is presumed to be capable of establishing a domicile independent of that of the parents; it remains for that person to demonstrate that a separate domicile has, in fact, been established.

Prisoners. There are special provisions concerning domicile of prisoners. For more information, persons to whom these provisions may apply should consult the Manual.

Property and Taxes. Ownership of property in or payment of taxes to the State of North Carolina apart from legal residence will not qualify one for the in-state tuition rate.

Students or prospective students who believe that they are entitled to be classified residents for tuition purposes should be aware that the processing of requests and appeals can take a considerable amount of time and that applications for classification should not be delayed until registration, when the number of applications makes accelerated handling impossible.

MILITARY TUITION BENEFIT¹

Certain members of the Armed Services, and their dependent relatives, who are not residents for tuition purposes may become eligible to be charged less than the out-of-state tuition rate under N.C. Gen. Stat. §116-143.3, the military tuition benefit provision. Any person seeking the military tuition benefit must qualify for admission to UNC-CH and must file an application for the benefit with his or her admissions office before the first day of classes of the term for which he or she initially seeks the benefit. To remain eligible to receive the military tuition benefit, he or she must file another application for the benefit before the first day of classes of the first term in which he or she is enrolled in each academic year. The burden of proving eligibility for the military tuition benefit lies with the applicant for the benefit, and the application and all required supporting affidavits must be complete and in proper order before the first day of classes of the term in question. Because of the time involved in securing the necessary affidavits from the appropriate military authorities, prospective applicants for the military tuition benefit are urged to secure application forms from their admissions offices and begin the application process several weeks before the first day of classes of the term for which they seek the benefit.

¹The information in this section comes from three sources: (i) North Carolina General Statutes, §116-143.3, (ii) A Manual to Assist the Public Higher Education Institutions of North Carolina in the Matter of Student Residence Classification for Tuition Purposes, Revised September 1985, (iii) Chancellor's Rules and Procedures for Residence Classification of Students for Tuition Purposes and Determination of Eligibility for the Special Military Tuition Benefit.

Eligibility of Members of the Armed Services. Eligible members of the Armed Services pay a rate of tuition computed by applying a statutory formula which is dependent, in part, on the amount of money payable by their Service employer to them or to the institution by reason of their enrollment. Application of the statutory formula yields the following results: if the service member's education is being fully funded by the Service employer, the amount of tuition owed is equal to out-of-state tuition; if the member's education is not being funded by his or her Service employer, he or she pays an amount equal to in-state tuition; and if the Service employer is providing partial educational funding, the amount of tuition owed depends on the amount of funding contributed by the Service employer.

To be eligible for this military tuition benefit, the individual must

- a. be a member of the United States Air Force, Army, Coast Guard, Marine Corps, Navy, North Carolina National Guard, or a reserve component of one of these services; and
- b. be abiding in North Carolina incident to active military duty which is performed at or from a duty station in North Carolina.

Eligibility of Dependent Relatives of Service Members. If the service member meets the conditions set forth above, his or her dependent relatives may be eligible to pay the in-state tuition rate if they share the service member's North Carolina abode and if they have complied with the requirements of the Selective Service System, if applicable.

If the service member voluntarily ceases to live in North Carolina or is involuntarily absent from the state on military orders (other than absences on routine maneuvers and temporary assignments), he or she is deemed to have moved his or her abode from North Carolina. If a dependent relative of a service member has become eligible for the military tuition benefit and, after the beginning of the term of eligibility, the service member moves his or her abode from North Carolina, the dependent relative will continue to be eligible for the military tuition benefit only for the remainder of that academic year. An academic year runs from the first day of classes of the fall semester through the last day of exams of the following summer session, second term.

For a detailed explanation of the military tuition benefit provision (including an explanation of the formula used to compute the tuition rate for service members), a complete list of categories of persons who are considered "dependent relatives" for purposes of establishing eligibility for the military tuition benefit, and information about the registration requirements of the Selective Service System, applicants should consult A Manual to Assist the Public Higher Education Institutions of North Carolina in the Matter of Student Residence Classification for Tuition Purposes (as amended September 1985). This Manual is available for inspection in the Admissions Offices of the University. Copies of the Manual are also on reserve at the Robert B. House Undergraduate Library.

Appeals of Eligibility Determinations of Admissions Officers. A student appeal of an eligibility determination made by any admissions officer must be in writing and signed by the student and must be filed by the student with that officer within fifteen working days after the student receives notice of the eligibility determination. The appeal is transmitted to the Residence Status Committee by that officer, who does not vote in that Committee on the disposition of such appeal. The student is notified of the date set for consideration of the appeal, and, on request of the student, he or she is afforded an opportunity to appear and be heard by the Committee.

Any student desiring to appeal a determination of the Residence Status Committee must give notice in writing of that fact to the Chairman of the Residence Status Committee within ten days of receipt by the student of the Committee's decision. The Chairman will promptly process the appeal for transmittal to the State Residence Committee.

NOTICE ON "DIRECTORY INFORMATION" TO ALL STUDENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT CHAPEL HILL

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill has routinely made public certain information about its students. Some typical ways this has been done include the following: names of students who are selected by the various honorary societies, who receive scholarships, who make the Dean's List, who hold offices, or who are members of athletic teams are frequently made public. To facilitate campus communication, the University annually publishes the Campus Directory. Some professional and graduate school student groups publish directories of students in their departments or schools. The annual commencement program publishes the names of persons who have received degrees during the year.

Pursuant to the requirements of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, the University has designated the following personally identifiable information as "directory information": the student's name, address, telephone listing, date and place of birth, major field of study, class, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, and the most recent previous educational agency or institution attended by the student. The University will make public information about each student limited to these categories in ways such as those described above. Of course, information from all of these categories is not made public in every listing. The Campus Directory, for example, publishes only name, address, telephone number, and class.

Under a special provision of the FERPA regulations, the University will also disclose personally identifiable information from a student's education records, without the student's prior written consent, to officials of another school or school system in which the student seeks or intends to enroll.

Students who do not wish to have any or all "directory information" made public and students who do not want information about them to be disclosed to other schools, as set forth above, without their prior consent, must notify the Office of the University Registrar, The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, of this fact in a signed and dated statement specifying items that are not to be published. This notice must be received by the Office of the University Registrar by the end of the registration period for the semester or session of first enrollment or, after an absence, of reenrollment, and by the end of each fall registration period thereafter.

FIREARMS AND OTHER WEAPONS

The possession of any gun, rifle, pistol, dynamite cartridge, bomb, grenade, mine, explosive, bowie knife, dirk, dagger, slingshot, leaded cane, switchblade knife, blackjack, metallic knuckles, or any other weapons of like kind upon any University campus or in any University owned or operated facility is unlawful and contrary to University policy. Violation of this prohibition is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine not to exceed $500 and/or six months' imprisonment, and may constitute a violation of the Campus Code.

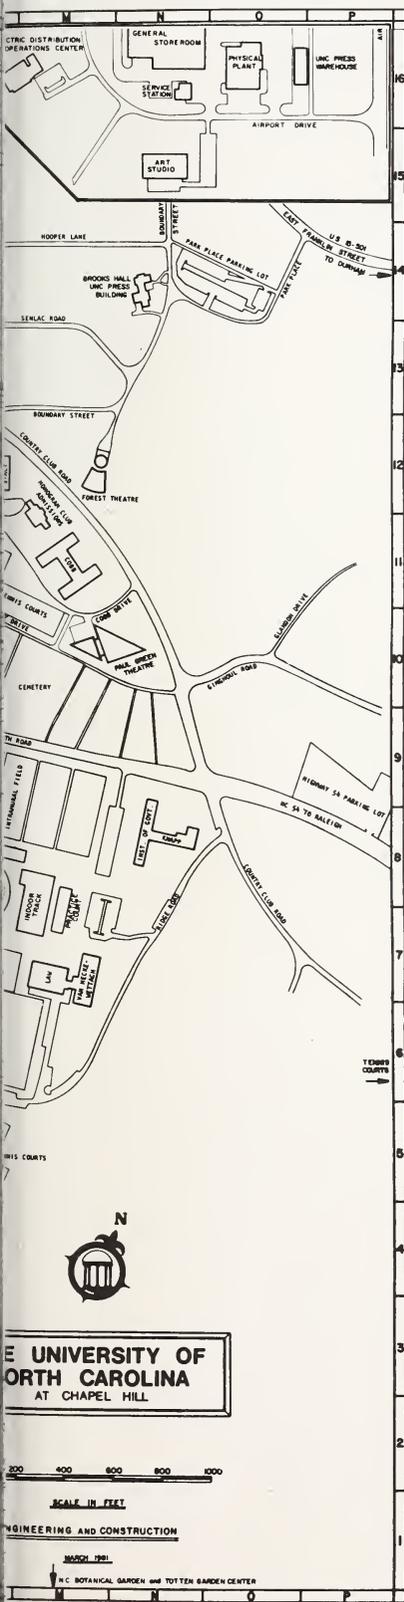

IMMUNIZATION REQUIREMENT

Effective July 1, 1986, North Carolina State law requires that no person shall attend a college or university in North Carolina unless a certificate of immunization indicating that the person has received the immunizations required by the law is presented to the college or university on or before the first day of matriculation. Students enrolled at UNC-CH on July 1, 1986 are exempt from this requirement.

If the UNC-CH Medical History Form containing the certificate of immunization is not in the possession of the UNC-CH Student Health Service ten (10) days prior to the registration date, the University shall present a notice of deficiency to the person. The person shall have 30 calendar days from the first day of attendance to obtain the required immunizations. Those persons who have not complied with the immunization requirements by the end of 30 calendar days will be administratively withdrawn from the University.
